Here is a CSV file and here is a subroutine that read the data into one or more Perl variables. The problem is that the performance is too low. Is it possible to improve this performance? Is there a way to print the value of $oid variable inside the loop instead of the print output? Here is the code. (I have used a sort command to sort the CSV file) sub importCSV { #file name my $in_csv = shift; #read csv file open(my $fh, '
