Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a mobile communication terminal, and more particularly to a mobile communication terminal in which an antenna connected to a circuit board on a mounting part of a body and to a power source part has an external antenna property suitable for being exposed outside. 2. Description of the Related Art In a mobile communication terminal such as a mobile phone, a large number of antennas are used for receiving and transmitting radio waves. A U.S. (United States Patent) application publication 'Portable Communication Device having an Internal Antenna Connected to a Flexible Pin Connector' (U.S. Patent Application Publication No. 2007/010599) discloses a mobile phone having a connector and a flexible pin connected to the connector. The antenna has a structure suitable for being exposed outside. The antenna is connected to the flexible pin. The flexible pin is extended through a wall and is connected to a circuit board on a mounting part of a body. In the mobile communication terminal such as the mobile phone, in addition to the antennas, a power source part is mounted on the mounting part of the body. The power source part supplies power from a power source to various parts such as a display part, a microphone and a speaker. In the mobile phone, in particular, the power source part is mounted with the antenna being exposed outside, and needs to be shielded against external radiation. If the above-mentioned U.S. patent application publication is applied to a mobile phone, it is necessary to connect a shield case to the flexible pin so as to shield the antenna from external radiation. That is, the shield case is required to have a size equivalent to that of the mobile phone. As a result, a structure of the mobile phone becomes complicated, and a large number of component parts are required. In addition, the shield case must be connected to the flexible pin
