To determine the reproductive health of horses in Pennsylvania and to examine the efficacy of a reproductive health program, we used data from a population-based study in southwestern Pennsylvania from 1990 to 2000. Data included address, reproductive tract disease, hormone analyses, semen quality, and endometrial biopsy, culture, and cytology. During the study, an increasing number of horses had acquired inbreeding, numbers of foals born, and numbers of sexually active horses increased, and the mean age at sexual maturity increased. Average herd size in 1990 was 70 horses; by 2000, it was 61.4 horses. The most frequent reproductive tract diseases were unilateral pyometra (33%), unilateral vaginitis (16%), and septic abortion (12%). Antibiotic treatment used for treatment of reproductive tract disease was commonly effective. Osteochondrosis was diagnosed in 12% of horses, and one horse with a thymic neoplasia died. Most semen was graded from A or B to C; 17% of sperm counts were +1. Let m be $(-10)/5/(1/g)$. What is the units digit of $z(m)$? 5 Let $u = 7 + -2$. Let $w = u + -1$. Suppose $-w * z = -z - 36$.
