* To open Photoshop, go to ``www.adobe.com/photoshop/index.html``. * The following sections provide a brief overview of some Photoshop features. For detailed information on editing or creating images, check out the user guide. ## Finding Photoshop: Windows, macOS, and Linux Photoshop is available for Windows, macOS, and Linux operating systems. The software is cross-platform and, therefore, can run on any of the three. However, the macOS and Linux versions are bundled with or require the Adobe Creative Cloud software that many people need. Therefore, the macOS and Linux versions come with Photoshop, or you can download it from the Mac App Store or the Linux App Store to run the software separately. ## Grasping the PSD Format Photoshop's layered design makes it possible to carry out a variety of functions on images. A `_layer_` is a canvas, or background, on which other layers can be added. Photoshop makes it easy to modify layers, their colors, and any type of artwork that may be contained within those layers. For more on layers, see Chapter 15. The PSD format is simply a compressed zip archive. To open a PSD file, you can use Windows to extract a zip archive from the file and then double-click the folder to open it in Photoshop. This method works for both macOS and Linux. You can also use the Mac App Store or the Linux App Store to download a Photoshop app that allows you to extract a PSD file directly into Photoshop. The PSD format is supported on all major operating systems. You can find other editors that support this format as well. ## Putting a Collage Together Photoshop has some handy tools for putting together a collage. These tools have fairly straightforward menus that enable you to add, edit, and rearrange items into a creative, one-of-a-kind collage. In this chapter, I show you how to assemble images into a collage using the tools and guidelines provided. You can easily use Photoshop to create a collage. The steps are fairly basic — place a piece of paper in a rectangular frame; paste images into the frame; select images with the selection tools; and crop the images. These are the essential steps to consider before starting any large photoshoot. ## Knowing About the Toolbars Photoshop provides a set of toolbars that contain commonly used tools and

Congress has found a way to lower the cost of Obamacare — and it's not by offering consumers better deals on premiums. The "Make America Healthier" plan, a replacement for Obamacare, would have cut the cost of health care in half for families making between $30,000 and $64,000 a year. Premiums would be substantially reduced by eliminating the most expensive Obamacare policies and by requiring insurance companies to spend at least 80 percent of their premium dollars on health care, not administrative costs. Premiums would have stayed below $1,000 for a 30-year-old making $66,000 a year with that policy, according to the Congressional Budget Office's projections. But the CBO estimates that under current law, premiums for that policy will be about $2,100 a year. The new premiums would be about 60 percent of what current Obamacare insurance premiums are. This new plan has a different structure than Obamacare does, which the CBO calls "a two-stage subsidy." Obamacare has a mandatory "first-dollar coverage" that's provided to everyone in the market, regardless of financial situation. Obamacare then provides a supplemental "subsidy" that's given to people who have high medical bills. The CBO found that the "first-dollar coverage" meant that low-income people would have been eligible for a 50 percent premium subsidy in each new market — more than was the case with Obamacare. The CBO also said that under the "first-dollar coverage," lower-income people would have paid less in premiums and higher-income people would have paid more in premiums than was the case with Obamacare. On Tuesday, the CBO released a paper that provides a look at how Obamacare would affect the federal budget. Now, the "Make America Healthier" plan takes into account the costs of that first-dollar coverage. The CBO paper said that with the "Make America Healthier" plan, people between $30,000 and $64,000 in income would pay $1,200 more in premiums than they do under Obamacare. It's a higher price, but a much better deal — because premiums would still be below $2,100 a year, according to the CBO. People earning more than $64,000 in income under the new plan would see big price drops. They would pay about $6,900

Q: Django: how to handle user action in views? I am developing a simple web application. I want it to work this way: after user logs in to the website, she can browse some blogs. I have two models: Blog and User I have a few questions regarding this: I want my website to "remember" the blogs that user has already viewed, so each time I view the blog, I don't have to load it from the database, but rather load the "logged in" blog from the database(which I can do from get_user_blogs method in BlogView class): How do I make

User object accessible to BlogView? How do I make the search toolbar work? Currently, I have it done by calling the searchmethod from the search_form. How do I make this work? Here is my code: models.py

from django.db import models class Blog(models.Model):
    title = models.CharField(max_length=250)
    description = models.TextField(blank=True) link = models.CharField(max_length=500)
    date_created = models.DateTimeField(auto_now_add=True)
    def __str__(self):
        return self.title
class User(models.Model): user_name = models.CharField(max_length=100)
    password = models.CharField(max_length=100) email = models.EmailField()
    def __str__(self):
        return self.user_name
views.py
from django.shortcuts import render from .models import Blog, User from .forms import UserForm from django.http import HttpResponse def user_login(request):
    if request.method == "POST":
        form = UserForm(request.POST, request.FILES)
        if form.is_valid():
            user = form.save(commit=False)
