Any wash, Gaussian blur, or local contrast filter was used to blend the effects. Go into the Layers palette (Window→Layers) to duplicate the tree shape. Name the new layer `_tree_` so you can easily refer to it later. From the menu, make sure the tree is set to be a Clipping Mask, so you can paint on it later

Beddows Beddows was an Inca nobleman who was able to play a lead role in the rebellion of Gonzalo Pizarro against the Spanish Governor of Peru. Description In 1529, Beddows was one of the leaders of the rebellion against the Spanish in Peru. He was a cousin of the previous Inca Manco Cápac, the leader of a previous uprising in 1527. Beddows had come from Cusco with the declaration that the Inca Manco Cápac was back, and that he would not serve the Spanish. He was joined by many other Inca nobles to fight for independence. Beddows was captured by the Spanish in the town of Lima, in December 1529. He was impaled on a raised platform next to a large post. After the Spanish burned down the houses of the nobility, he was executed and then burned to death. That's how the Tigers' announcers talked about them this week at Comerica Park. For instance, they referred to James Shields as "Shield's Shields," and if the Tigers take three out of five in their next series at Milwaukee, it will be the first time that's ever happened. But after a series that included one of the most competitive World Series in recent years, it's safe to say Shields can't be pleased with his season. He's 22-17, still a work in progress. So when he's asked by USA Today on Thursday, Shields had a lot to say about the season, his numbers, and a subject that has been a subject of debate among people who've watched the team this season. What happens when you get a big lead? Does Shields get rattled? "It can happen to anybody," Shields said. "We have a lot of home runs and we're taking a lot of pitches. It might happen. You never know. It's going to happen." Shields thinks it's going to happen when the Tigers play the Royals in Kansas City next month. "It happens when we're taking a lot of

Sitting around idle for long periods of time can be hard on your device - both your wallet and your laptop are tired of spending money on replacement. Luckily, there are plenty of ways to take charge of those idle moments to keep both the computer and your bank account healthy. Here are the best ways to get a productive use out of those idle minutes. 1. Take a bit of downtime to compile that spreadsheet Let's face it, we spend way too much time filling out spreadsheet with our phone either in bed, or at a cafe. So, why not take a little time to compile this information for your accountant? If you need to save money on your phone bill, see if you can bundle your calls together and have a single call instead of roaming around the place. Use apps like Spring to make bundling your calls a breeze. 1. Start your day with three cups of coffee This may not be obvious, but start the morning off right by having a coffee first thing. Coffee increases alertness and helps you stay productive. The National Coffee Association reports that the average person uses $155 worth of coffee in an average month. That's $6,320 a year. So for just one coffee, it'll be a huge time and money saver. It makes me think about how I started my day off, the thought that once I hit my minimum payment on my phone bill I know I'm going to be mooching off my wife and trying to do all those expensive things, how nice it would have been if I had coffee at the start of my day to put me in a healthier mood and start to feel like I could pull myself out of all those expensive habits of mine. But now it's too late. 2. Fill in that form on the train Put that list of contacts to form on the train, put that email or two to send out on the train. Just write it out and get it done. I've done this for years, on trains to Sydney or Melbourne, on the bus or when I'm doing my work on-line. Because it's so easy it's honestly all a huge productivity improvement. I usually go for a 20 minute train journey. Not because it's going to kill me, but because I literally write out 2 or three emails, get as much work done as I can and then read something
