Contents:Wew Hates Over the past several weeks, the World Cup has been filled with soccer fans of all nationalities watching Portugal's 3-2 win over Greece. Honestly, the more I see the team play, the more I realize how much I loathe them. Never in my life have I truly hated another human being as much as Portugal's fans do me. Some were in such a celebratory mood that it was hard to deal with. I am not sure if this "love" for Portugal is because I am ashamed to admit that my country is Portugal or because every time that I watch my country, I am reminded of all that they have done to ruin my entire life. Perhaps, it is a combination of the two. Whatever the case, I want to make it clear to all of you that I dislike Portugal with every fiber of my being. To start with, I have been to Portugal several times and have been to pretty much every port city in their country. Despite my love for the country, I am mortified that Portugal has become a place where people dress up for soccer matches. If I ever find out that any body part can be tied up and made to resemble a soccer ball, you will have your ass kicked. I usually avoid watch soccer matches in Portugal because of the fact that it is always a gathering of drunken soccer fans who seem to be on some type of a drug. The Portuguese drinking culture is almost as appalling as their football culture. Now, the Portuguese want the rest of the world to know that they are so much better than everyone else. The rest of the world, however, just wants to vomit all over their stuff. Portugal is a country where they do everything in the world like any other country except they have a different language and customs. I know that I said I was going to bite off a country's head. Well, I am not going to do that. Not even when I am drunk. There is absolutely nothing that I hate more than the eating habits of Portuguese. Well, maybe all the drunk soccer fans. I hate the way they use their left hand to eat food. It is like they are giving it their head as a baby would eat its mother's breast. If the food doesn't have enough salt, they just pour on more as a baby would pour milk. a681f4349e

Q: Replacing duplicate items in a list I have a list that contains duplicate items like this `x = ['a','a','a','b','b','b','c','d','d']` I would like to replace this duplicate items with unique list and put it into a new list. This is the outcome I'm looking for. `x = ['a','b','c','d']` I already tried using `unique()` but it didn't work for me. I would appreciate any kind of help.

A: try: `unique_list = [i for i in x if i != x[0]]` [edit] as pointed out in comments, solution should be: `import operator unique_list = [i for i in x if operator.ne(i,x[0])]`

Race to the Top: More Money Means More Grants - Just For Local Coffee Shops
March 2, 2009 - 11:00 AM By tcash

SACRAMENTO -- The race to secure federal education dollars is on, but what is being left out of some important discussions is the reality of small community schools. Through the Race to the Top application process, federal money is being made available to states in an attempt to boost student achievement and help schools better serve their needs. But the application only addresses schools and colleges, leaving cities and towns out of the discussion. What are the implications of the lack of local input in the selection of grant recipients? "While that is unfair, the reality is that most businesses in this country are locally based so it's just not on the table," said Bob Blank, vice president of the Small Business & Entrepreneurship Council. As an example, Blank highlighted the application process for the Secretary of Education's school turnaround initiative, "Partnership to Drive Educational Success." States apply for funding, but the application takes into consideration everything from poverty to school and classroom size to test scores, a process that begins in February. "The whole point of it is to create a conversation with stakeholders in education to hopefully shape policy and school practices to improve academic outcomes," Blank said. The $4.3 billion school-improvement grants were designed to improve low-performing schools and close achievement gaps. Schools or school districts with adequate funds will not have to participate, and they will have three years to transition

Master Firm Purchase & Sale Agreement Zimin -

We have been asked to prepare a Master Firm Purchase & Sale Agreement with UCG. I have reviewed the latest version of the document and have made suggested changes which I have placed in the attached document. Please let me know if the document is still OK to proceed with or if you have any changes. If no changes, I will proceed to have them executed by the appropriate officers of both parties. Thanks, Gail

The effect of intraluminal ammonia and ureolytic bacteria on ammonia toxicity. Intraluminal inoculation of rat duodenum with Escherichia coli to produce ammonia-urease activity was shown to protect the tissue from toxic effects of the ureolytic agent. This occurs by reducing the concentration of ammonia at the interface between the
