I was reviewing a comment when a similar comment was created (partially). The new one was a bit less elaborate than the old one. I clicked to flag this as "low quality", even though it was more elaborate. Would the flag have been approved if I hadn't done that? A: That's your job. If it looks like the comment was created in reaction to a flag, then vote to close as "low quality". It's possible that the comment was copied from the review, but still worth creating a duplicate in those instances as well. Similarly, if it looks like an attempt to correct something or whatnot, post an answer instead. Q: How to Convert C# Dictionary to Json string I want to convert C# Dictionary into Json format and can't figure out how to do it. I tried converting C# dictionary to JSON with the help of JSON.NET library. I am not able to get the desired Json format. Here is my code: string jsonData = JsonConvert.SerializeObject(dic); I want my JSON to be like this: { "id": 1, "name": "Test", "data": [{ "id": "1", "name": "Test1", "type": "Test" }, { "id": "2", "name": "Test2", "type": "Test" }] } I am missing some thing over here? A: You can just serialize using Json.NET: var d = new Dictionary() { { "id", "1" }, { "name", "Test" } }, { "data", new List< new Dictionary() {
