Second day on the beach. Watched as the Mexican Navy frigate chased a boat, caught the boat in the bay, then put the guy on board and sent him back to the shore. Saw the destroyer, then the frigate. It looked awesome! Nora, the good life? A Place in the Sun Went to the Pan-American Games in Veracruz and attended my first event (basketball). Watched as the Mexican youth (junior) team beat a U.S. team that consisted mostly of their NBA stars. "Honored to be your President," Obama says at Mexico's State of the Union address Back in April when I was in Mexico City, I was a guest at the U.S. ambassador's residence for the State of the Union address. Among the Americans attending were Secretary of State Hillary Clinton and Treasury Secretary Timothy Geithner. The three of us were seated next to each other. I watched as President Obama looked directly into the camera and said: "I am honored to be your President." The second time I attended a State of the Union address was during the 1996 presidential campaign. I was at the Democratic convention in Chicago when I saw and heard Bill Clinton say: "I am honored to be your President." That's why I was so excited to attend my first State of the Union address. I wanted to watch Obama say: "I am honored to be your President." I was saddened to hear about the death of Oscar Romero, the Salvadoran priest who was killed on March 24 at the age of 80. I met him in January 2009 when I was in Washington, D.C. Romero was an influential Catholic in Latin America. Here's his quote about America's influence in Latin America: "The United States has been a net
