a new set of values, a new house. Is it okay to move when you're ready, without waiting to be forced to move? In your twenties, you are moving to get out of debt or your parents' house. In your thirties, you're moving to be on your own or to go back to school. Later, you move to be closer to your children or to return to school. You'll move once you have the requisite skills and education and income to take care of yourself, financially and professionally. In your forties, you move to be near your parents, or to be in the place that gives you the most pleasure. You also move when you have children. Maybe you move to be near your parents, to be near your kids, or to be near your partner. Whatever your reason, it's a move about yourself. Your fifties
