Polestar Polestaré is a French multinational holding company, which sells cars and mobility solutions with a focus on electric vehicles and “zero-emission”. The core areas of Polestar are also home to the Volvo subsidiary Polestar Racing, which runs the Volvo Car Team Polestar. The company was founded in 2011 by former managers of the Dutch sports car manufacturer Spyker. In 2017 they sold their initial stake in the Dutch company, which left the Polestar group. History Polestar was founded in the Dutch city of Noordwijk. The driving force of the new company was Spyker Cars' managing director Tom Cottingham. The company plans to build and distribute cars and mobility solutions at home and abroad, in Europe, Asia, Latin America and North America. In May 2018 Polestar acquired the assets of the Polish company Raketa, which is the owner of the vehicle manufacturer Polestar. On 1 November 2015 Polestar announced the launch of a luxury electric sedan, the Polestar 2. Its projected price is €55,000. In 2017 Polestar bought the former Volvo Car Group's European portfolio, in order to create a "zero emission electric car company" with an electric car built by Polestar and a sister company, Polestar Racing. In 2016 the head offices of Polestar and Polestar Racing were established in Lund. Polestar is aiming to launch its electric car in 2020 and it will compete with Tesla. In 2018, a car named Polestar 1 was launched. Polestar has offices in the Netherlands, Norway, Sweden, France, China, the United States, Spain, Japan, Poland, Germany, Sweden, Finland, Italy, Australia, India and Japan.
