Photoshop is free for up to 10 gigabytes of images and $7 a month for 100 gigabytes. Photo editing tasks using Photoshop is free for up to 2GB of images; $7 for 3GB and $10 for 5GB. We walked through each part of Photoshop, explained what they do, and how they can be used. For this beginner tutorial, we will only discuss Photoshop's basic features. We will assume you have a basic understanding of advanced Adobe programs and some exposure to the basics of image editing. This tutorial uses the Mac version of Photoshop. Check out our tutorial on the Windows version of Photoshop. Controls The first thing you see when you open Photoshop is the controls bar at the top of the screen. It contains two window controls, zoom and navigate. Zooming in and out moves the active image within the canvas. Navigate to move the active image to a new spot on the canvas, or to resize the image. The zoom controls can also be used to set the size of the active image at any magnification level. You can use the navigation arrows on the control bar to move to different locations in the canvas. The active image is indicated in the upper left hand corner of the window. It contains a title bar with the file name. Right below the title bar, you'll see a white box. This is the Photoshop canvas or work area. It contains the image and whatever tools and tools are active. You can move, zoom, or resample the image within the canvas. Tools There are two main types of tools in Photoshop: vector and raster. Vector tools work only on vector graphics, such as illustrations, cartoons, or graphic designs. Raster tools work only on raster images. Raster tools include an eraser, ruler, and drawing tools. You use the Add Canvas menu item to add more canvas space. This is useful for placing drawings on a new layer. The Move Tool menu item lets you move the active image around the canvas. The Scale tool lets you scale the active image to fit in the canvas and to resize the canvas. To help users understand how they work, each tool has a green arrow in the upper right corner to indicate how that tool moves, zooms, or resizes the image. If you want to modify a text layer, you can click the Layer tool in the toolbox. A box pops up at the bottom of the window. 388ed7b0c7

The Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee has released the transcript of an interview with National Rifle Association Executive Vice President Wayne LaPierre (recording obtained by Breitbart News). In the interview, LaPierre warned of a “well-orchestrated plan” to eliminate private gun ownership in the United States, and stated that he will “do everything in my power to stop [Democratic presidential nominee] Hillary Clinton from appointing ... an anti-Second Amendment judge to the United States Supreme Court.” In the interview (transcript below), LaPierre warned that the Obama administration is working on a “well-orchestrated plan” to eliminate private gun ownership: It’s now been revealed that you have a secret plan, a well-orchestrated plan to ensure that the Constitution is replaced in its entirety with a radical new constitution of your own drafting, in which government now decides what rights you have. That’s not what we’re supposed to do. We were all told that the Founders established a limited government where the government is the people and the people’s will is established. Now you’re saying that no, there’s a well-orchestrated plan to reverse the Founders and make the government, not the people, determine the rights that we have. I want to know what you’re planning. I want to know what you’re planning to do, because I’m going to do everything in my power to stop it, to stop this destruction of our Second Amendment and all the other amendments that protect our personal rights. LaPierre claims that Clinton is planning to fill the Supreme Court with a “Justice” who will “change the entire constitutional system of the United States”: [Clinton’s] nomination of a Justice to the United States Supreme Court will change the entire constitutional system of the United States of America. The forces of radical activism and opposition to the two-term limit on a president will seize control of the Supreme Court by electing justices who will change the entire constitutional system and hand-pick the law of the land. It will change the entire constitutional system of the United States. LaPierre said that a Trump presidency would “protect our Second Amendment.” When asked by committee chair Sen. Joe Lieberman (I-CT) about the NRA’s endorsement of Trump, LaPierre stated that “our

Q: Why is my React app throwing the error 'React expects a component class, got []'? I'm trying to render a component with React here: import React from 'react'; import ReactDOM from 'react-dom'; class App extends React.Component { constructor() { super(); this.state = {posts: [], loading: false}; this.renderPosts = this.renderPosts.bind(this); this.loadPosts = this.loadPosts.bind(this); } loadPosts() { this.setState({loading: true}); fetch('/api/posts') .then(posts => posts.json()) .then(posts => this.setState({posts: posts.results})); } loadMorePosts() { if (!this.state.posts.length || this.state.loading) return; fetch('/api/posts/more') .then(posts => posts.json()) .then(posts => this.setState({posts: [...this.state.posts, ...posts.results]})) .done(); } render() { if (!this.state.posts.length) return ; return ( Posts {this.state.posts.map(post => {post.title})} ); } } ReactDOM.render( document.getElementById('root'));

I'm not sure why this error is occurring. I see others with the same error and they're not sure how to solve it either. Here is an error in question A: You should extend your component to
