Photo Courtesy of Steven Wang Mastering Photoshop is a fundamental skill, especially for graphic designers and web developers, that goes beyond the typical day-to-day tasks that Photoshop is used for. In this article, we will take a look at the application's different layers and then how to work them effectively.

1. Understanding the Photoshop Layers Layers are an essential tool for Photoshop image editing and production. One of the most important aspects of digital editing is that it is done in layers. Photo Courtesy of Steven Wang The Photoshop layers feature gives you the ability to create multiple layers and easily move and copy them in a way that you can easily paint or erase. The layers feature has been present in Photoshop since version 2.5 and allow users to work and display various image edits. Photo Courtesy of tebor

2. The Layers Dialog Box and Layer Modes The layers dialog box enables you to add, move, delete, or resize various layers and control how you see the work you're doing. You can see the layers box in the image below in the Property Sheet area. Layers are displayed based on the mode, which can be either Standard or Advanced. Below are the various features available in the layers panel and the Standard/Advanced modes. But they can still be accessed by either using the shortcut CTRL + SHIFT + C to move layers or CTRL + SHIFT + ALT + A to delete. Photo Courtesy of Yetter Photo Courtesy of Jens Koike

3. Layer Masks Layer masks are another technique that helps you hide certain areas of a layer so that you can selectively edit certain areas. The layer mask feature allows you to paint the areas of a layer that you want to keep and then paint over the areas that you want to hide. You can either use the default settings (100% opacity and the P or Pencil tool) or you can change the opacity and brush type to get the look that you desire. The following image demonstrates

The best alternative to Photoshop is AFFS (AlterEgo Face Finder & Face Designer). AFFS is a free web-based solution that lets you create custom-crafted face images. It allows you to customize a face's gender, race, eye color, hair color, and age (with over 100+ age range options). The coolest part about AFFS is that you can add a variety of hairstyles, makeup, hats, glasses, and other accessories to make it appear as if the user has been created by a celebrity makeup artist. AFFS offers a powerful collection of face design tools such as Brush, Line Tool, Pencil, and Mask. You can also import images, frames, and reference photos to customize your avatar.

Features of AFFS

- An ultra-flexible design tool;
- AFFS is an add-on to a social photo sharing service;
- It has a rich library of accessories;
- Accessories include faces of various sizes, eyes, eyeshadow, glasses, hair, hairstyles, hats, and makeup;
- The suite comes with features that allow you to add text, different fonts, and backgrounds;
- You can also add a custom photo of yourself to become your avatar;
- Upload your photos to AFFS using Facebook, Twitter, and Flickr;
- You can access AFFS's library from any web browser, including mobile phones and tablets;
- Every design from AFFS comes with a preview, which can be used to either invite friends or to save the custom image on your hard drive;
- You can use the service with any service that allows you to upload photos to the service;
- AFFS has a community of designers and artists which helps you become a better designer;
- The service has an API that you can use to add more features, such as a chat function.

AFFS will be a useful tool for those who want to create custom images to use as avatars for social networking websites and forums. It is also a good tool to use for selfie-taking, profile picture editing, and other purposes. AFFS is the best alternative to Photoshop, but you may not need it; AFFS is great for photo editing and design, and offers more options, but its interface is much more complicated than that of Photoshop, and it's missing some features.

Are 4chan users really banned from using the bathroom in Virginia schools? Well, the answer is yes and no, depending on how you look at it. The short version of the story is that the Washington Post reported in a must-read story from this past weekend that the Virginia Attorney General is investigating one particular bathroom which has apparently been taken over by members of the anonymous message board site 4chan. 4chan is a board where users post links, most often pornographic, which other users can then vote up or down. The high scores posters receive for their links makes them into stars of the site. The Washington Post report explains that access to this bathroom in the Richmond Public Schools is being restricted, for want of a better word, to 4chan users, and that the school administrators are embarrassed about the situation. That alone might be strange enough, but then the whole reason that 4chan exists in the first place gets sort of back-handed. 4chan was created as a reaction to sites like kat.cr, which were creating their own content and publishing it to be voted on by other users. That's a more typical sort of internet behavior and involves a lot of community involvement. Which is why 4chan offered an alternative solution, where the very idea of community doesn't have to be good faith. That's how it works on 4chan, and the sort of behavior on the site doesn't have to be "community" so much as "suck." According to the Post report, the site describes itself as an anonymous message board based on off-the-cuff discussion. I know a lot of people, myself included, find 4chan a little silly. I find the politics and the links somewhat annoying. But I get the argument that, in some ways, the effort needed to create an anonymous website and post your thoughts for others to vote on is actually pretty admirable. I wrote a little more about it on my site. So, if one of the largest sites on the internet exists in its current form because some people just want to have anonymous sex, why on Earth is the school board banning 4chan users? Here's the whole story from the Washington Post: The controversy comes as schools across the country are battling a swell of sexting, cyber bullying and inappropriate photos that have taken hold of high schoolers. Internet-based forums such as 4chan, where millions of people post anonymously, provide a fertile ground for all manner of hurtful speech and

The Queensland girl and her father were forced into moving to the Gold Coast from their native WA amid a bitter dispute over who should care for the child, when her mother was allegedly caught up in a cover-up in the Canberra NSL. After failing to get council support in WA, the couple eventually moved to northern NSW where they met lawyer Brad Evans, who took the case to the High Court. It took eight weeks of legal proceedings, and an appeal by the Child Support Agency, before Judge Peter Marshall ruled last year that Queensland had jurisdiction and ordered Canberra to pay $31,000 a year in child support. The father says his daughter grieves at going back to live with her late mother's relatives in the Gold Coast. "I was just hoping it would go through," he told the Herald. "She still cries the first time when we go to Canberra ... she's only four, she's got no idea what's going on and it's really hard to deal with. "So she goes back in about a week or two." The story has come to light after the father filed a High Court application to stay proceedings. The girl's father wants to take the matter to the Court of Appeal, and that will take up to a year. Meanwhile, the father's other daughter is growing up in the family's Gold Coast home with his wife and partner of 15 years, despite her stepmother not having been legalised to care for her.

However, the girl has not been told the real truth about her father's death. Her
