Q: How to merge the content of two directories into a single output using ruby script? I have two folders called - A & B. Folder A has text files named as - 1.txt, 2.txt, 3.txt, 4.txt... 250.txt etc. Folder B has text files named as - 50.txt, 51.txt, 52.txt... 250.txt etc. Both the folders are separate. I would like to merge the files from both these folders into a single folder with the same format where 1.txt from Folder A and 50.txt from Folder B should be merged into a single file with the name as - 1/50.txt. I want to do this using ruby script. Please advise.

A: I believe you are looking for an intersect/intersect_by gem. You can use a block that operates on a given directory to merge files and write out the result to a different folder. # we only wish to preserve filenames starting with "1" and "50" for the purposes of our # example.

class MyMerger attr_reader :files, :folder_name def initialize(folder_path) @folder_path = folder_path # create a new instance of the system to process files and directories @files = Dir.glob(File.join(@folder_path, "/*")) @files.map! { |path| path.sub(/A\d+\./, "") } @folder_name = "combined_files.txt" # if this is the first directory we are merging, create a new file containing the # directory name if !File.exist?(@folder_name) File.write(@folder_name, @folder_path) end end # This block is responsible for taking in a directory at a time # and merging its contents with the contents of a folder_path def do_each(directory) # iterate through all of the files in the directory @files.each do |path| # traverse directory recursively if there are subdirect

Today we introduce you to 8-year-old Peter F, who lives in St. Louis, Mo. Peter is the first artist from the entire city to be featured on ShapeStudio's website. What are some of your hobbies? Playing with Lego, computer games, and doing school projects. When I grow up, I want to be an artist. I also enjoy riding horses. What is your favorite thing about the city of St. Louis? I love the Zoo. Do you have a personal design goal? To create designs that people of all ages would be happy to own. I'd also like to design a butterfly house for kids. Do you have a favorite piece of art from your city? I like "The Lonely Lake" by Gary Garcia. Have you ever taken a class in art, illustration, or design? If so, what did you learn? I took an art class when I was in kindergarten, but I really enjoyed it. In my writing class I learned about punctuation. When I was in Miss Shapiro's class, I learned a lot about lettering. What are your favorite types of art? Animals. How long have you been drawing and/or painting? I've been drawing and painting for as long as I can remember. What inspired you to start a blog? I love crafts and design, so I started this blog to share my art and design projects. When you draw or paint, what is a scene that inspires you? I like to draw and paint different types of animals, like giraffes, elephants, dogs, cats, horses, etc. What do you do when you aren't creating? I like to ride horses and play with my dog, Tabby. What is your favorite thing about the city of St. Louis? I love the zoo and the Botanical Gardens. What are your favorite venues for creative pursuits? I like going to the library, and drawing at the park. I also enjoy playing on my tablet. Are there any local artists you admire? I'd like to learn from them. What is your first creative memory? I remember my sister and I would make little clay dinosaurs and put them on our shoes.
