A program that's free is usually licensed under the GNU Public License (GPL), which means that it is free of charge as long as you follow the terms of the GPL license, specifically including the requirement of sharing your work with others, although there is no requirement to keep the source code up to date. Many free and open source programs can do what you need. You can probably get most of your basic needs out of GIMP. You can even use the program to resize and duplicate images without replacing layers. Photoshop Elements for Mac There are many solutions for photo editing software that are available for Mac users. However, the latest versions of Adobe software are available for the Mac platform. Take Photoshop Elements 10 for example. It can be downloaded directly from the Adobe website for free. It has the standard Windows features and the same functions as the standard Windows version of the program. In addition to standard photo editing features, you also get Photoshop Elements 10 Photo Studio. Factory Collapses, 7,000 Migrants Abandon Seven people were confirmed dead, and more than 7,000 others were evacuated from the collapsed factory in China, after a small quake on Monday. Hundreds of migrant workers died in China last year when an explosion rocked a factory that was constructed on top of another factory that had been found to be unsafe. (China Daily/Associated Press) BEIJING - Seven people were confirmed dead and more than 7,000 others were evacuated from the collapsed factory in China after a small earthquake on Monday. The quake measuring 3.6 magnitude hit at 12:58 am Beijing time and shook the downtown area. The government of Yunnan province in Southwest China was conducting a full probe of the disaster. "Seven people died, including two from a female factory worker's family," said Chen Kun, a local government official. One man died of a heart attack, he said. Many residents were sleeping in their homes when the quake struck, and ran out in the streets to see what was happening. "I just ran out the door to see what was going on," said a local woman surnamed Zhou. "There were a lot of people running everywhere. It was a scary moment for me." The government is also scrambling to find migrant workers who had gone home for the night, among them a 14-year-old migrant girl. She was found dead in her village with her neck severed from her body, according to a local official. A male migrant worker surnamed Liu had his leg amputated at a hospital in Handan after he was injured when the roof collapsed. But relatives in the countryside had not heard from him since the accident, and were worried he was buried in the rubble. "We are not sure whether he is dead or not," Liu's mother, who was at the hospital for his treatment, told a local newspaper. "We had no hope of getting any relief from the government. We have no way to make a living." Hundreds of migrant workers died in China last year when an explosion rocked a factory that was constructed on top of another factory that had been found to be unsafe, according to local officials. In an incident that would become a symbol of China's abysmal worker conditions, a group of workers had taken refuge in the factory the night before the collapse. They didn't know the building was unsafe. "They had gone into the bathroom
