NASCAR legend Rusty Wallace, who began running a promotional skin care line called Rusty's Skin Care, will be bringing his brand to an official stock car racing series. He's teaming with NASCAR to bring his line to the Monster Energy NASCAR Cup Series during a 2018 race at Homestead-Miami Speedway. The race, the season-ending race for all but the top-tier series, will feature up to 150 specialty cars on track for the 2018 STP 500. It will also be the first of 20 Monster Energy NASCAR Cup Series races featuring Rusty's Skin Care. "I've been working on this for some time and have been preparing to fully carry the line since I announced it on social media," said Wallace. "For the entire NASCAR fan base, it's a pleasure to have the opportunity to serve them for the upcoming season." NASCAR will feature ads promoting the event on television, radio, internet and social media. Rusty's Skin Care is priced at $19.50, with the goal of funding the majority of the line from a portion of the product's sales. In the past, Wallace has launched other brands, including TakeAction Health. In a press release, Monster Energy NASCAR Cup Series CEO Jim Campbell said the company was "excited for the partnership with Rusty because of his connection with fans and his reputation for providing the best quality products in the industry." NASCAR has made a move into promoting race-day sponsorships as a way to help boost its own attendance and revenue. Good for NASCAR and Rusty, and good for a potential race fans in the Southeast. -- Jamie S. Montellaro
