Finding Additional Free Software Even if you had an expensive copy of Photoshop, the Internet enables you to find additional free software programs. For example, the GIMP (GNU Image Manipulation Program) is an advanced image editing program for those who wish to use more advanced techniques. Image Editing Software Other image editing software includes the standard paint-based programs like Paint Shop Pro. Image Editing Software The software you use to create images will play a key role in how your image is created. To learn the requirements to use software for your images, check out our article What software do I need? Print Processing Software You need to be able to manipulate your images so they can be printed on the presses used to print your business's materials. To create your own business materials, consult with your printer, copy machine or other printing service about what format they need and what software you will use to create your files. If you don't have access to a file format your printer or printing service can use, there is a business called Photoshop File Formats which offers a free download of Photoshop's .psd file for print. Your printer may prefer to send you files in the native printer file format or as a TIFF. If you send your printer a TIFF file, your printer will create a high resolution .pdf file that can be printed on a regular office printer and creates a better printed copy than a low resolution .jpg file. However, if you need to work with more than one print job at a time and if you use the same artwork on a number of jobs, you may prefer using .psd for your projects. You may also prefer sending your files in .pdf format instead of the .psd file. After all, .pdf file is a standard file format with an easy editing process. The first thing you need to do when you have your .psd file is to open it up in the Photoshop program so you can drag and drop it into Photoshop. Tips to Speed up Editing You can speed up your own image editing by learning how to use more than one image editing tool at a time. For example, if you are editing an image of a person in a certain pose, try changing your angle and position. Another way to speed up Photoshop editing is to set up your workspace so that you can quickly see all the various features in your Photoshop program and the tools you are using to Crystal structure of a dimer-tetramer interface of a heterodimeric protein. The adenovirus 2 major membrane protein is composed of two identical subunits, H and L, that form a heterodimer that is essential for viral gene expression. The dimeric H and L subunits are heterodimerized by an intersubunit disulfide-bond, and the N terminus of L is tethered by an intersubunit disulfide to its C terminus. Mutational analysis of the epitopes for the neutralizing antibody G3 has revealed specific residues on the surface of a C-terminal alpha helix that are critical for the maturation of the precursor adenovirus hexon trimer. Using G3 and other neutralizing antibodies as probes, we have identified a cluster of positively charged surface residues on the side of L (residues 595-607) that are implicated in heterodimerization. This region forms an integral part of the only intersubunit contact interface between the two subunits that is critical for the interaction of L and H. We have also expressed, in Escherichia coli and in insect cells, the subunits of adenovirus 2 and used a combination of mutational analysis and comparative protein crystallography to determine the crystal structure of L(595-607) peptide. The alpha helical peptide adopts a crystal structure similar to that of the small helix of the G3 epitope, indicating that the G3 epitope and the L(595-607) peptide could bind to the same dimer interface of adenovirus 2. The L(595-607) peptide forms a trimer, in which the three monomers, which are the repeating unit of the crystal, are related by crystallographic three-fold axes. Each monomer contains a short amphipathic alpha helix that associates with the neighboring monomer at a dimer-tetramer interface. Q: Rails 3 nested resources URL structure I have the following two models in my Rails application: class Post :destroy validates_presence_of :body validates_presence_of :author_id, :unless => :author_is_ignored? end class User 'posts' end

 This works fine and the URL for a 'Post' is: `/authors/:author_id/posts/:id` How can I modify the `/authors/:author_id/posts/:id` URL to use a bookmarkable URL (like A: `try :resources :authors, :collection => { :posts => :get, :bookmark => :get }`) The collection above specifies that each of the resources in the collection, like posts, can be accessed in two different ways : collection and bookmark. The collection action allows you to provide a list of actions that each of the resources in the collection can be accessed from. The bookmark action allows you to provide a list of actions that each of the resources in the collection can be accessed from. By providing a bookmark action, you can make it possible for the bookmarkable routes to be used as a bookmarks-only resource. "We have three goals in our cabinet and other members of the House. First, is to move our agenda forward," Phil Scott said. "Next is getting the democratic agenda to where it needs to be. And third, we want to make sure that the environmental agenda will be one that represents the incredible accomplishments of the southern Green Mountains." The governor said he feels good about the chances of passing his latest group of bills. "There are issues where there is consensus, there are issues where it's very difficult to get there," he said. "As with any kind of process, you have to work
