HyperMotion™ is part of the technology that powers the redesigned 360 Degree Control system in FIFA. Improvements have been made to optimize the game experience for the new control scheme, such as replays showing grips and movements, as well as being able to control the ball from all over the pitch. New attacking system for next-generation gameplay “FIFA’s gameplay has always been inspired by the relentless pursuit of excellence in football, from every aspect of the game,” said Peter Schier, Executive Producer on FIFA. “FIFA 22 continues that lineage with real-world play and technology that brings players, teams and stadiums to life on the pitch.” New authentic, next-generation matchday experience
Developed by SIE Worldwide Studios
Montreal, FIFA 22 will take the thrilling experience of watching real-world football on TV and bring it into the player’s living room. The game will feature live streaming of most matches, which can be accessed via the ESPN app. Announcing the game, FIFA Executive VP of Marketing Will Glaser said: "FIFA, for many years now, has been the global sports game of choice and our team is always excited to deliver on the highest quality of game and service possible. FIFA 22 is an enormous landmark moment for the FIFA franchise, and we are looking forward to sharing it with our fans and, equally as important, looking forward to bringing the new game to those fans." More information about FIFA 22 will be revealed at E3 and at the official game reveal on the 28th July.

The influence of day-night cycle and light intensity on plasma melatonin levels in rainbow trout. This study assessed whether the acute effects of phase shifting light on melatonin levels in rainbow trout are dependent on circadian and/or photic intensity. Subgroups of rainbow trout (Salmo gairdneri) were exposed to either a 15 min pulse of phase-shifting light (0.1 klx, 5 min), a phase-shifting light (5 min), constant light (5 min), or darkness (5 min) at 0800 h, 0400 h, 0200 h, and 2000 h. Plasma melatonin and cortisol levels were examined by radioimmunoassay. Salmon transferred from 14:10 to 16:8 light-dark cycles were handled either in constant light (LL) or darkness (DD) and were sampled at the same time
